

the gods

BY

JOHN

WELCH

THE GODS

John Welch

2016

Fifth Electronic Edition

© John Welch All Rights Reserved

A Few Quotes

A wise man, recognizing that the world is but an illusion, does not act as if it is real, so he escapes the suffering.

-Buddha

Three things cannot be long hidden: the sun, the moon, and the truth.

-Buddha

Is man merely a mistake of Gods? Or God merely a mistake of man?

-Nietzsche

If people are good only because they fear punishment, and hope for reward, then we are a sorry lot indeed.

-Einstein

Atheism – The knowledge that ghosts don't exist; death is final; magic is fake;
good/evil is relative; consciousness
requires a brain

-Anonymous

All thinking men are atheist.

-Hemingway

Perhaps God chose me to be an atheist?

Bill Vaughn

Worship me, or I'll torture you forever!
Have a nice day.

-God

Gods don't kill people. People with Gods kill people.

-Anonymous

The Beginning

Every ending has a beginning and every beginning has an end. That seems like it makes sense because it does. For as long as man has existed he has wondered and theorized on how the universe began.

That makes sense right?

After all every ending has a beginning.

But what if there is no ending?

Well then, logically there must be no beginning as well. If I begin counting at zero and move up infinitely then it will never end. If I count down as well as up it will have no beginning as well. There also will be no mid point. It will just go on forever. I purport that the universe, not just our universe, but existence and everything that will ever be is infinite like how I just discussed counting.

It will never end.

Why would it end?

One thing we can tell is that time is not stopping and never will. In fact, if we try as hard as we fucking can, we cannot stop time and space.

Therefore it has no end.

If it has no end then it has no beginning.

Those are important concepts to understand before reading this short book. There is no end and there is no beginning, therefore there can be no God. After all if God created existence, then who created God?

It just doesn't make sense.

I have an idea why we exist and I will cover it later in this book.

You are probably wondering why we exist and religion offers a perfect answer to that question. I think that is fine. If you want to belong to religion or believe in one, then have fun.

I really don't care.

Once we have covered some simple scientific concepts then I will tell you about the amazing truth I have to tell you.

It will truly change your life.

Now lets move on to the next concept.

We're Never Gonna Run Out Of Fucking Room

Some scientists think that eventually we will run out of room.

I see things differently.

I think that we will never run out of space to live in because of a simple and logical fact.

Time is infinite and as we discussed earlier it will never end. Therefore space is infinite as well. If space is infinite then why would we run out of room?

Some people think this means there is universes inside us.

This is not true at all.

There is certainly no stars inside my hand and there is definitely not living creatures inside my hand. My hand, like everything else that exists is made of atoms which are made of the same sub-atomic particles. The atoms and sub-atomic particles are not planets or universes. They are the building blocks of matter and everything is made of them including you. So why am I so sure that space will never run out? I will tell you in the next section.

Our Universe Was Made

Yes, our universe was made for us. We are no accident. As for evolution, it was made too. Evolution is a real thing and it is happening.

However our universe was not made by a magical being like God.

Actually God does not exist.

I purport that our universe was made by extra-terrestrials.

Now at first this may be hard to accept, but if you think about a few simple logical facts about existence then you will have to agree. First of all we have already covered how there is no beginning and there is no end.

Time is infinite.

It is never fucking stopping.

Now we know from our civilization that creating our own universe is inevitable.

Why?

With the speed that computers are developing, soon we will be able to fully compute every sub-atomic particle in our universe. It only makes sense that we would create a universe by arranging the sub-atomic particles to form a universe that we want. That of course will take a significant jump in technology, however it is inevitable because we already agreed that there is no end.

There never will be.

So we have to assume that since there is no beginning and an infinite amount of time has already passed, then an extra-terrestrial civilization must have already built a universe. Odds are we are inside one of the universes they built.

So if time will never end and our universe was created then space will never end.

You're probably thinking 'this is crazy'.

Yes, it is crazy.

We were created by extra-terrestrials.

In fact it is only logical that existence is trapped inside a computer controlled simulated reality and is actually physically happening at the same time.

Why?

We know that it is because that is the obvious path for a civilization to follow. Eventually we will create a universe to live in and we will keep it in a computer simulation. Therefore if this is the eventual path for a civilization and an infinite amount of time has already passed, then it must have already happened to a civilization that came before us. In fact it must have happened to them as well too.

So how do you know you are in a computer simulation?

Well there is no way to be sure, ever.

However logic tells us that we are in fact in a computer simulation and the logical controllers and programmers of that universe are extra-terrestrials.

“So what about my God?”

You may be asking that and it may be that your God and the story behind your religion are made up by humans or the extra-terrestrials controlling the simulation we live in or both. They may have done this just for something to do.

“What about my soul?”

“I want to have a fucking soul.”

I'm not saying you don't. Your soul is like a save file for who you are. The extra-terrestrials are keeping it and have complete control over it. This explains reincarnation and the afterlife.

In fact the afterlife may be real and God technically is an extra-terrestrial. He is not from Earth.

Perhaps your God is an extra-terrestrial.

Maybe you are an extra-terrestrial and you are reincarnating and you had all of your memories wiped before you started life.

You could be one of the extra-terrestrials.

I purport that you will live forever.

How do I know?

Math, dumbass.

Infinity=Infinity

“What about before my beginning, that is not infinity?”

It is because your existence has no end. The count started at one millisecond and will never end. It is infinite. Even if you live only ten percent of me or one hundred times more, we both will have lived forever. It is simple math.

Infinity=Infinity

“How do I know I will have another life?”

Of course that is what the extra-terrestrials would give you. Isn't it what you would give them or another living creature if you had the power.

Parallel Universes

A lot of people hear about infinity and they think that means that every possible outcome will have happened and there is an alternate universe where I am a different color or things happened slightly different like you had cereal instead of eggs for breakfast.

This is not true.

Our universe could be expressed as a number and it is unique. If we start at 0 and count both up and down infinitely and the number that represents our universe is 567 for example, that number will only occur once and even though we are counting infinitely, we will only encounter 567 once. It is unique even though it is immersed in infinity.

The same goes for you.

You are completely fucking unique.

If there is an infinite number of living things and you are one of them and the number 10 represents you for example, then there is no other number identical to yours. -10 and 110 are close, but your number is still unique even though there is a never-ending amount of numbers.

You are unique and you are special.

So if I think you're special, then the extra-terrestrials who created our universe and you must think you are special too.

Therefore why would they ever let you die.

Do not think of existence as Gods and living things.

Think of it like this:

There are two types of beings

(1)

Those who are governing the simulation we are living in

(2)

Those who are not governing the simulation we are living in

Who is an extra-terrestrial and who is an earthling and who is older and who is younger does not matter.

So why are you stuck as someone who is not governing the simulation.

You're not.

As we discussed earlier, it is humanities eventual destiny to build a simulated reality and when that happens you will have the opportunity to become one of the beings that govern the simulation then. Now, since we know time will never end, odds are eventually you will become one of the beings that are governing the simulation.

“But am I gonna live forever?”

Of course, as we have already discussed you have a soul. It is your save file. In fact eventually you will have the ability to create life. You will never be the creator of existence but you could create life.

You could design your own planet.

Does that seem too far fetched?

Think about this – at the beginning of the twentieth century we could not even get a plane to fly and by the end we had supercomputers, the internet, and we flew to the moon and back.

That is a hell of a lot.

Now imagine how far and how much we can accomplish in a billion years. Logically we will be able to accomplish 10 million times as much or even more because 100 times 10 million equals 1 billion.

“What about my soul?”

It only makes sense that when humanity is ready to create its own universe(s) and world(s) to live in/on, that the extra-terrestrials who have our save file(s) will transfer them over to us and we'll no longer be below them.

It is inevitable.

What About My Religion

Well if you believe in the simulation that we are living in then your religion is part of the simulation. Unfortunately no religion can be completely true. Even my theory of a simulated reality is possibly flawed or slightly wrong. Unfortunately most religions will be proved false for several reasons. One reason is that they all contradict each other, so not all of them can be right. For Christianity to be right another religion must be false and so on.

Perhaps they are all false.

Perhaps they are made up by the extra-terrestrials who are governing our simulation. Maybe they are just entertainment. Eventually Earth and the universe we are in will die and we will of course live beyond this world. This will disprove most religions theory of creation and eventually as we learn to create life and replicate matter, belief in God will become more and more primitive.

Face it, religions just do not last.

So Why Do We Exist

The answer: Entertainment.

We exist for the same reason most people watch TV – for something to do. We were created just for something to do and of course the entire purpose of your life is for something to do. This includes suffering and experiencing happiness. We are growing. As you live life you grow and it only makes sense to make more life, after all we don't want to shrink. Growing just feels good and there is an infinite amount of space for us to exist in, so why not grow.

I figure the more, the merrier.

My purpose is entertainment.

To entertain myself.

To entertain others.

To experience.

It certainly is not to love a God that does not exist.

Creating A New Dimension

First we need to create a working universe including matter, gravity and energy on a powerful supercomputer. Today's computers just are not powerful enough. I think accomplishing it in 10,000 years would be a good goal to aim for. Computers would be much more capable by then and we would have the resources to build the necessary computer to use if humanity continues to prosper the way it has. There are many obstacles to overcome like global warming and overpopulation.

You are probably wondering how do I get to this new dimension? It is quite the barrier to developing the new dimension, but I assure you – you would not have to fly there.

First lets declare some variables.

Simulation 'A' – Reality, Earth and the universe it inhabits

Simulation 'B' – The reality where the controllers and programmers of Simulation 'A' are

Simulation 'C' – A universe made by the human race that exists inside computer – it can't truly exist until a user uses it – until then it is just data – data that can be experienced electronically by an electronic organic device like a brain

Brain 'A' – The brain of the transferring user that exists in simulation 'A' – it is who the user is – the user is (1) memories that make him who he is and (2) an electronic organic device that is recording the present at an ever changing moment and storing it in memory as the past – the user is nothing more than this

Brain 'B' – A virtual copy of brain 'A' that is made using mind uploading – it does not exist of matter – it is a map of brain 'A'

Brain 'C' – The transferring users new brain in simulation 'C' that we will sync with brain 'A' and brain 'b'

Now to explain the transfer.

- make a fully functional universe on computer (simulation 'C') it would include physical laws, gravity, matter, energy, etc.

- connect user to mind uploading device – this technology is in development

- sync transfer user's brain (brain 'A') to brain 'B'

- Connect users brain 'A' electronically to simulation 'C' – this may require surgery – the user would also need a fully working body in simulation 'C' including dna, brain, organs, blood, etc.

- transfer user is now both in simulation 'A' and simulation 'C' – the user has two bodies and three minds – one mind is only a virtual copy (brain 'B')

- then we can disconnect one of the bodies and the mind that goes with it – if we eliminated the brain 'A' and the body from simulation 'A' then the user would still be in simulation 'C' and it may be hard to accept but your memories is who you are – you are nothing more – the user would have a fully functioning body and brain in simulation 'C' and would continue to live inside that new dimension – the user wouldn't be able to return to simulation 'A' – the user's only way to communicate would be for another user to enter simulation 'C' or to communicate through computers – without a body and brain in simulation 'A', the user would not be able to return – it may be hard to accept but the dimension we all inhabit is nothing more than this

-so now the user has two minds which are synced by computer – any activity in brain 'C' which is in simulation 'C' is synced with brain 'B' allowing consciousness to be 'backed up' permanently

-next we will talk about what happens when the user dies in simulation 'C'

-well if you can accept that all you are is your memories then you can understand how we could make or grow a new body for the user inside simulation 'C' – it is the simulation we control with computer - then we sync the minds and the user can live forever and possibly have any body that they want. After all, all you are is your memories and an organic computer recorder recording them, if we switch off the recorder or connect a new one, then no loss of consciousness happens – consciousness is just an ever changing moment when you are experiencing the present and storing it as the past – if you didn't store memories, you would almost have no identity – your only claim that you exist is your past and an ever changing moment in the present that is becoming the past

-it will take a massive improvement in technology and computers – but it will happen

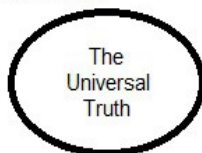

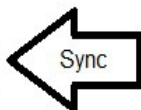

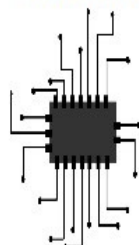

Diagram Showing Transfer Process To Computer Simulation Built By Human Race

- 1- User is body(b), brain(b), and 'save-file' brain(a)
- 2- Connect user to mind uploading device - User is body(b), brain(b), 'save-file' brain (a), and uploaded mind (brain (c))
- 3- Create body/brain in simulation - User is body(b), brain(b), 'save-file' brain (a), uploaded mind (brain (c)), body (d), and brain (d)
- 4- Eliminate body(b), brain(b)
- 5- User can no longer sync with brain (a) - however they still are it
- 6- Live in simulation until death - then start another life in simulation

Original Save-File

Brain 'A'
Virtual Mind

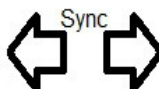

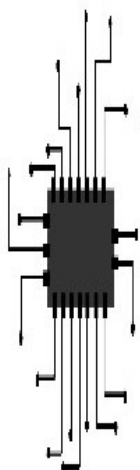

Person Born
In Reality

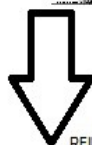

Transfer
Process

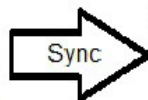

Organic Brain
Brain 'B'
Reality

New Brain
Computer Simulation
Brain 'D'
Organic Brain

REINCARNATION

Human Made
Virtual Brain
Uploaded Mind
Brain 'C'

Q - What am I?

A - An uploaded mind and a body/brain - syncing is not necessary to exist. Unless your 'save-file' is erased and you die, you will always exist. Why would the beings governing the simulation erase you?

Q - Are these uploaded minds or virtual brains organic?

A - They would be chemical and electrical however they would not need blood or nutrients. They could last forever.

Q - When will we transfer?

A - I think by 12,000 CE.

Diagram Showing How Reincarnation Can Occur Using Mind Uploading Even When Transferring To A Simulation

Life 7 is 'Save-File'(not synced) and Human Made Mind Upload and Organic Body/Brain in Simulation(b)

- 1 - Born Over And Over Again In Reality Which Is A Simulation(a)
- 2 - Transfer To Human Made Simulation(b)
- 3 - Born Over And Over Again In Simulation(b)

Save-File

Human Made Mind-Upload

Sync Organic To Virtual

Sync Organic To Virtual

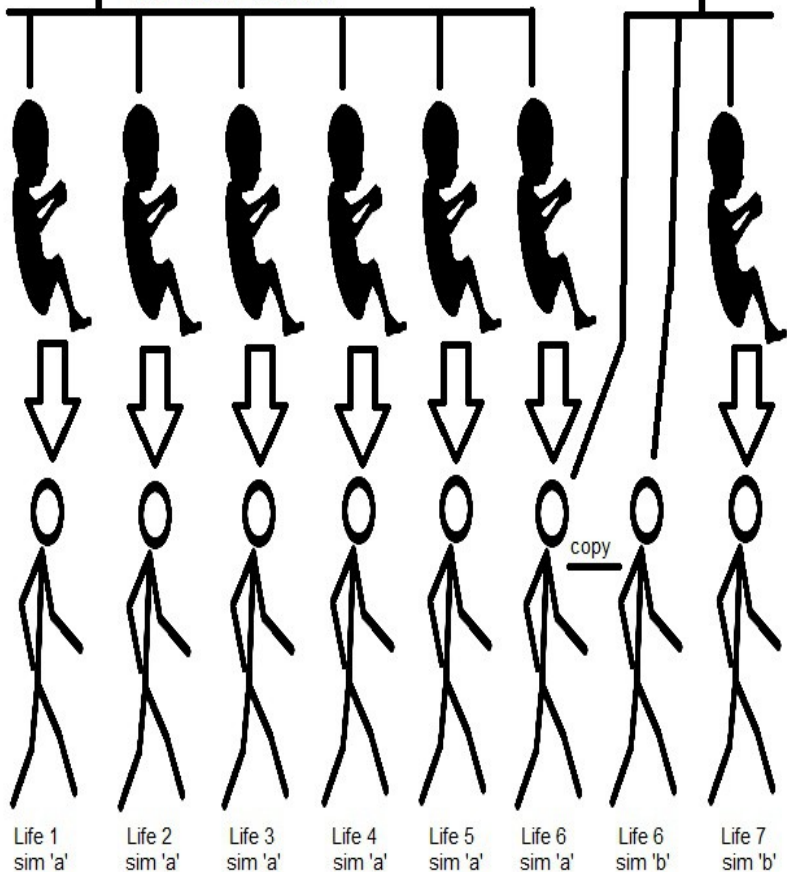

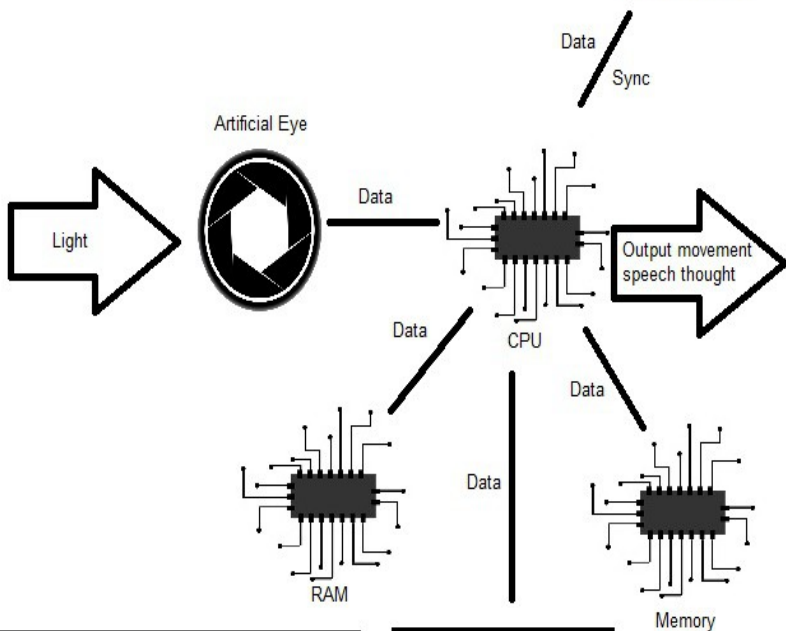

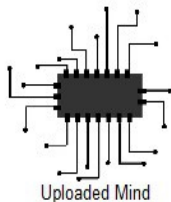

Diagram Showing How Mind Uploading May First Transfer Consciousness To An Artificial Brain Instead Of A Simulation - It Is A Very Real Possibility And Will Probably Occur Before Transfer To A Simulation

- 1 - Connect Brain To Mind Upload Device
- 2 - Sync Virtual Brain To Organic Brain
- 3 - Sync Virtual Brain To Artificial Brain
- 4 - Check For Consciousness In Artificial Brain
- 5 - If Step 4 Is Positive Then Eliminate Organic Brain
- 6 - User Lives In Robot Body
- 7 - When Simulation Is Available Then User Has Opportunity To Get Body In Human Made Simulation

Taste
Touch
Smell
Sound (Electrical)

The Universal Truth

Key Concepts

Our universe exists only to those who are inside it – to everyone else it is just a computer file

Reality is truly unattainable

Each living creature of our universe is a 'user' of the simulation

A 'save file' is a recording of who you are – it is your soul – a recording of your memories

The brain is an organic device that is making a recording of the present – the simulation is recording it to your save file

Time only appears to be passing inside the simulation – users perceive time

The purpose of life is not to build a simulation it is entertainment

The purpose of life is not to develop science – that is just something that we do

The present is an ever changing moment – it is part of the simulation – without your brain and body recording you could not perceive time – you would perceive nothing

The only thing that would unite our world in peace is war with aliens

Our universe is obviously by design; it behaves by a set of rules; it is constant

Everyone is important and special and unique

Only what is happening now matters

Violence is exciting; the predator's life is exciting because he eats his prey; the prey's life is exciting because he may be eaten – life is entertainment, this includes suffering, killing, and dying

Every day you could be a different person

– the only thing that makes yesterday real is the memories

Holding people accountable for the past has no value for the past – it only has value for the present

Holding people accountable for the past is only valuable for the future when it becomes the present

We are held accountable for the past in the present and in the future when it becomes the present, therefore the past matters; the future matters because it will eventually be the present

It doesn't matter who you were

It doesn't matter who you will be

It only matters who you are now

The world and the universe it inhabits is a story; we are writing that story; the extra-terrestrials are reading that story

The past may not have happened; only the present is real

The future will inevitably happen, soon it will be the present

What is more likely – that we were made by a magical being or by an advanced civilization

We will be 'Gods' – it is our destiny

Your 'save file' is your memories – that is who you are – after all your present is an ever changing moment when you are recording your memories

Everyone is going to live the same amount – forever

Everyone is special

Everyone is unique

Everyone is important

Love everyone – at some time you will hate them

Everyone is good and evil

The universe was designed using technology for entertainment purposes

There is no God – why would there be?

Why wouldn't there be extra-terrestrials?

Religion is an attempt to try to explain why we exist – The Universal Truth is too – it is the real reason why we exist

Earth and the universe and life are like a magnificent work of art – every stroke of the brush matters so much

The Universe (Our Dimension) is software

A User (Living Thing) is experiencing its own universe – it runs off of the software

People are curious. They want to know the beginning; there was no beginning. Why would there be a beginning? It is simple – existence has always existed. It will never stop existing

We want to believe we were created and we were – however not by a magical being

Life is by design – it was designed to appear as though it was an accident

By accepting The Universal Truth you accept to become wealthy – wealthy with knowledge

The past may not have happened – that is a fact

Believing in The Universal Truth takes a lot of assumptions – you must assume that we are in a computer simulation – you must assume that there is no God (Creator of Existence) – you must assume you were created by an advanced civilization – all of which seem logical to me – you may need to think for a while before you accept it

All beings who exist, exist. They are just as vulnerable as everyone else. Who we are today is just part of the journey. The belief that there is a being like God who is exempt from the laws of existing is false. Everyone exists.

The universe is like a series of numbers – the count is going down and up infinitely – zero is the present – 1 year ago has the value -1 and 1 year from now has the value 1. There was no beginning and there will be no end.

Everyone will at some time be important

Everyone is special to someone else

The only thing that makes the past real is the memories

Imagine your existence like a line being drawn by a pen – it would be impossible to tell if it is just one line or a million connected together – the past is the portion of the line that has already been drawn –

the present is the spot where the pen touches the page – the future is what has not been drawn yet – it will happen – existence is a never ending line – it is both static and dynamic – if we stop drawing the line for 10,000 years and then begin again, it will be impossible to tell when the line began again – death is like this – it is just a break in the line – it is inevitable that the line will continue to be drawn – after all existence will go on forever – the present is just an ever changing moment when we perceive the past – go ahead and think about the future or the present – that nanosecond is already the past

Questions

Are we forever dependent on the extra-terrestrials?

No, since time will go on forever, it only makes sense that eventually we will build our own universe – then we will be their equals – we are all equal

How should we build our first simulation?

We need not worry about this. Science will inevitably develop the technology we need like creating life forms and simulated reality, then we can figure out how we want to proceed, and possibly in more than one way. This will be a long time from now. There is nothing you can do for now.

What about reincarnation?

I can't answer that question for you. It is your own choice if you want to believe in reincarnation. I think I will never stop existing.

Do animals become people and vice-versa?

I hope so. That only seems fair. A human might be too smart to be an animal and that wouldn't be fair. However an animal could become a human.

Who created the original biological beings?

We don't know – there was no beginning.

Are the beings that are governing the simulation also users?

Users of the simulation are possibly a mix of beings that are governing and not governing the simulation. Eventually they will build their own simulation – this would either mean connecting a brain to a computer or getting access to the save files for the simulation.

Are you an atheist?

Technically no. Deities or gods are part of the simulation.

Are we property then?

Yes, we are property.

Would meeting the creators or the beings who are governing the simulation actually accomplish anything?

Possibly. We could ask them questions or express our thanks to them for taking care of us. Life is a story. It is a story that should be appreciated - Everyday we are characters in it.

What if I forget I am in a simulation?

That is okay. An important part of enjoying a simulation or a story is forgetting that it is a simulation or a story. Enjoy everyday.

What you believe contradicts the scientific evidence that the universe came to being through a big bang and that life evolved on Earth.

Yes it does. I strongly believe I was created by extra-terrestrials. I do believe in evolution and the big bang theory is credible. I strongly believe the universe is a computer simulation because I feel that is logical. Keep in mind that an infinite amount of time has already passed – it only makes sense that existence would have gone digital by now. It does go against what science tells us – it is a belief and will never be more than that for the human race. When we build simulated reality and we construct our own universe to live in and we build life forms we will be past being human beings – we will no longer be animals – we will be 'Gods', but not the creator of existence.

When will we be technologically equal to the beings who are governing the simulation we are in?

I'm not sure. Perhaps by 1,000,000,000 CE.

Why is it logical that we are in a computer simulation?

It is logical that we are in a computer simulation because an infinite amount of time has passed and another civilization would have built simulated reality by now. It only makes sense that they would care for and nurture all living creatures they encounter and keep them in simulated reality. We can assume this because it is what we would do. Humans view all living creatures on Earth as their responsibility – if we knew of other creatures from other worlds or universes and we were technologically developed enough we would consider those life forms our responsibility as well. Therefore it only makes sense that we must be in simulated reality and the controllers of that simulation view us as their responsibility. They would give you anything a loving being would give you.

When will the human race have built our own simulated reality?

12,000 CE.

How do you know we will build a simulation?

I just believe that we will eventually build simulated reality – it only makes sense that that is what we would do – of course we would want to build a universe – just like we built a home and a castle – there is only one other possibility – stopping to exist.

What about time in the new dimension?

Time will continue to pass in the new and old dimension independently of each other.

How do I know that the extra-terrestrials are keeping a save-file for me?

It only makes sense that they would want to preserve life and the mind would be completely important to them. Isn't it what you would do? Why would you allow something to die if you are an advanced being like the ones who are governing the simulation?

So What Will Happen To The World

Here is a list of predictions

(1)

Communism will eventually disappear

Why?

Because that is the current trend in the world. History tells us that communism is just a fad.

(2)

Capitalism will never die

Why?

Because selling stuff and owning private businesses makes sense. Everyone wants to do it and history tells us that it is not a fad like communism.

(3)

There will be a nuclear war

Why?

Because the world is only building more nuclear weapons and logic tells us that eventually they will be used. Conflict is inevitable.

(4)

The Earth will nearly become uninhabitable due to global warming but will survive and fix the problem with technology

Why?

Because science tells us the Earth will become uninhabitable if we continue living the way we do. It only makes sense that we would fix the problem with our technological abilities.

(5)

We will eventually create life

Why?

Because it only makes sense with the rate technology is developing that eventually we will create life, after all existence will never end.

(6)

We will eventually colonize another planet

Why?

Because if we can go from not being able to fly at all to flying all the way to the moon in less than a hundred years and we are going to live infinitely, eventually we will reach another planet and of course we will colonize it.

(7)

We will eventually create simulated reality

Why?

Because with the rate computers are developing it is a very real possibility and of course it is what we would want to do.

(8)

We will eventually achieve immortality

Why?

Because like I previously discussed in the book, the extra-terrestrials that have our save-file will eventually transfer it over to humanity when we are ready. Isn't it what you would do?

(9)

Religion will be proved false

Why?

Because they are all flawed and contradict each other. They cannot be all right.

Recap

You've digested a lot. Now you know the truth. You know that we are living in a computer simulated reality because it is logical that it has already happened and you know that there is two types of beings. Those who are governing the simulated reality and those who do not govern it. Some things like creating life or creating a universe may seem far out, but since we will live forever and exist forever it is inevitable to reach those scientific milestones. Now you know that you will never die because you have a save file. That is why when someone dies we cannot find the soul. It was in a computer in another dimension all along. It is who you truly are. Now you know your true purpose. It is entertainment. You were created to entertain someone else. Your life is for your entertainment and eventually you will create life to entertain yourself and grow. Doesn't that seem much better than religion.

THE END

The Universal Truth

<http://theuniversetruth.tumblr.com>

Be happy with existence being only temporary, but know it will last forever